Very unlikely desu.
It's not too difficult to intentionally induce specific conditions that would lead to a thermobaric explosion. So, if this was intentional, it is more likely to be jewish sabotage than anything else, as that is their forte.

Don't worry it's just a sodium nitrate explosion that caused an earthquake 4.5 on the richter scale equivalent to a 5 kilotons of TNT, cause a flash, a large mushroom cloud, was felt 100km away and shattered every window in Lebanon, then caused the radiation to spike up in Italy.

Watch the videos. There are people recording who would've been obliterated at that distance if the explosion of that size was nuclear. It was something else, most likely a warehouse storing fertilizer chemicals. A fire broke out and eventually it blew something up judging from the videos and what I've read so far. This shit has happened in western countries, look up videos of these types of incidents. There's one from Waco, Texas that looks like this and several others from the US alone. If you think that was nuclear, you are a certified moron.

It's not worth debating with these schizos. They'll probably see the bubble of the explosion and say that's proof it's nuclear completely ignoring the fact any explosion can vaporize the water in the air. Beirut is at 80% humidity right now.

Bang Bang
>The 2019–2020 Lebanese protests, also known locally as the October Revolution, are a series of civil protests taking place in Lebanon, initially triggered by planned taxes on gasoline, tobacco and VoIP calls on applications such as WhatsApp,[14][15][16] but quickly expanding into a country-wide condemnation of sectarian rule,[17] stagnant economy, unemployment that reached 46% in 2018,[18] endemic corruption in the public sector,[17] legislation that is perceived to shield the ruling class from accountability (such as banking secrecy)[19][20] and failures of the government to provide basic services such as electricity, water and sanitation.[21] The protests first erupted on 17 October 2019. It has been 292 days since they started.[22][23][24]

>As a result of the protests, Lebanon entered a political crisis, with Prime Minister Saad Hariri tendering his resignation and echoing protesters' demands for a government of independent specialists.[25] Other politicians targeted by the protests have remained in power. On 19 December 2019, former Minister of Education Hassan Diab was designated the next prime minister and tasked with forming a new cabinet.[26] Protests and acts of civil disobedience have since continued, with protesters denouncing and condemning the designation of Diab as prime minister.[27][28][29] On 21 January, Lebanon named Hassan Diab as its prime minister to lead the new cabinet of 20 members, after three months of mass protests. Diab was appointed with the support of Hezbollah, its allies, and the Free Patriotic Movement led by Gebran Bassil.[30]

1. It probably wasn't a nuke.
2. If it was nuclear, it was not comparable to Hiroshima/Nagasaki but may have been some dirty minibomb of unknown type (JIDF shit)
3. Injuries such as the ones you describe can be caused by conventional weaponry too.
So we have no proof positive either way. The absence of such injuries is no definite proof the thing wasn't nuclear. There is, however, also no definite proof that it was. I'm in for big connventional explosion. And I think it was a huge ammo depot, and not some Fireworks or Nitrate shit. That may have been involved and may have ignited the final big explosion, though.

Go looked up a BLEVE I'm willing to bet that's what this was. I'm not a 100 percent convinced because you should see a 5000 gallon tank of propane or 20,000 gallon tank of LNG and I don't see it. Maybe underground

Anons, why is my dick getting hard from this? The more I hear the explosions and people screaming the harder it gets. I'm in a nofap streak but it's getting hard not to fap to this.

It's a pretty solid concrete silo complex. The explosion side is pretty fucked up but overall it's still standing.

When Satan tried to corrupt Jesus he offered him to govern in many kingdoms. Why do you you think Satan offered him those kingdoms?

Because he ruled in them.

This confirms the MASSIVE, near instantaneous over-pressure delivered from that blast from THAT distance. Conclusion: Nuclear.

Shill harder, Moshe.

It's not a nuke, davy crockett bomb in the 60's was comparable to 20 tons of tnt and the blast was only a third as big as beirut blast yet still produced a blinding flash. No flash=no nuke
